March Artist of the Month— Shalese Sands, Willmar

Ever since Shalese could hold a pencil, she loved drawing and animals. So it was only natural that she would combine her two loves. Her passion for art has only grown throughout the years and her love of animals has kept up with it. When her family took a vacation to Yellowstone in 2009, her inspiration skyrocketed. Shalese was able to get very close to a large bull elk—something she has never done before but had always wished to experience. She discovered the sublime in a powerful way, a feeling she hopes is portrayed in all of her art. From that point on, she has wanted to excel in the field of wildlife art while continuing her passion for equestrian art. Shalese is a recent graduate from Northwestern College in St. Paul with a B.A. in Studio Art and a hope to make wildlife/equine art her full time profession.
