Artist of the Month – Joyce Meyer, Canby

Joyce began dabbling in photography when her children were young and that interest turned into an obsession to move to the next level of knowledge of technique. Back in the film days, she received a Southwest Minnesota Arts and Humanities grant to set up a darkroom in her basement and learned how to develop and print her own photographs and experimented with various darkroom techniques including double exposure "ghost" images.

Now in the digital world she has learned similar techniques to "blend" multiple images together to create new composite pieces. Her love for rural Minnesota has also prompted her to work on another Southwest Minnesota Arts and Humanities Council grant to present a showing of these blended works. Through these works she hopes to present the people and beauty of our rural area in a unique and compelling format.
